ROUND-UPS.

The Texas Cattlemen Will Not Do Much Shipping this Month-

The Number of Cartle Per Capita in the Different Countries-Beef on | oot and Over the Block-Notes and Personals-

It is not expected that the general movement of cattle from Texas during the present month will be anything like as large as it was during September, 1889. Last year there was a general stampede and the race was to see who could get to the market first. The result was a ruinous market and losses to all who shipped. Cattlemen have profited by experience, and they do not at our office, 500 Houston street. wish to go through the same thing this year they did last. It is known that there must be marketed from the Indian Territory a large number of cattle of all kinds-steers, cows and calves. These cattle will stock the markets for all they can stand, and for a while it is believed there will be more cattle on the market during September than the market demands. If this is the case prices will be low, and as Texas cattlemen can better afford this year to hold back their cattle they will do so. There may be who will in spite of conditions staring them in the tace ship to market, and is safe to assume that they will be sorry they did so when their returns come in. Those who hold back their beeves until the rush is over will in the long run reap the benefits of a good market which is sure to come in the spring and perhaps in December.

INTERESTING FIGURES.

Number of Livestock Per Head of Popula tion in Different Countries,

In 1885 there were 41,000,000 sheep in the United States: 72,000,000 in Austrain and 100,000,000 in the Argentine Republic. We have two-thirds of a sheep to every inhabitant: in the Argentine Republic there are twenty-five sheep and in Uruguay forty sheep to every man, woman and child. We have 40,000,000 of horned cattle, a population of 60,000,000; the Argentine Republic and Uruguay have 38,000,000 of cattle to a population of 4,000,000. In Uruguay, with a population of 500,000 souls, there are 8,000,000 of cattle, 20,000,000 of sheep, 2,000,000 of horses, or sixty head of stock for each man, woman and child. Fifteen million dollars have been invested in wire fences in Uruguay alone, and more than twice as much in the Argentine Republic. In either of these countries a cow can be bought for $5, a steer fattened for the market for $10 or $12, a pair of oxen for $25, a sheep for lifty or sixty cents, an ordinary working horse for $8 or $10, and a roadster for $25, a mule for $15 and a mare for whatever her hide will bring. Mares are never broken to saddle or harness, but are allowed to run wild in the pastures from the time they are foaled until they cease to be of value for breeding, when they are driven to the saledros or slaughter houses and killed for their hides. A man who would use a mare under the saddle or before a wagon would be considered of unsound mind. There is a superstition against it.

The Hog Likes Solltude. Mr. J. M. Stewart, in National Stock. man, says: "The best thing I see about the hog is that he objects to being a Mormon, and when you confine him in a house (let it be ever so fine) with a crowd of other hogs, he will hold his head down, lose his appetite, sicken and die. But put him in a sheep shed, where all the manure is out, and allow him the run of the sheepyard and all the water he will drink and he will use up all of the apples, potatoes and corn you will give him, and in return for your kindness will give you back about four pounds of pork a day on an average, which will sell at 416@5c a pound. He will not object to slop made of middlings or bran, and is very fond of a lump of rock salt, which should always be in his parlor, near his easy chair. A few bushels of slack or charcoal is a great treat to him. as it helps him keep his digestive organs in good shape. A pound or so of copperas and sulphur in one end of the trough will keep off lice and other vermin, and also ward off disease.

Beef Low and High.

Beef in the Fort Worth market, when offered for sale on foot by the producer, is terribly low; but when bought over the block by the consumer, is fearfully high. There are little "big fours" right here in Fort Worth as well as big ones in other cities. A well-fattened cow (steers are rar ly bought here by the butchers) weighing 900 pounds, will bring to the producer $13.50 at the ruling price, one and a half cents, when offered the Fort Worth butcher, and if the animal is not rolling fat it frequently sells for one cent per pound, which would make the returns from a 900pound cow $9; but when sold over the block this animal will bring not less than $80, and very probably $40. This may be what butchers call legitimate profit. but to a man up a tree it looks like anything else. Butchers never reduce the price of meat over the block, no matter what they pay for beef on foot. have cast iron prices, and they are there

Notes and Personals. Manager T. T. D. Andrews of the Home land and eattle company purchased at Midland last week 700 one and two-year-old cattle of the T. X. ranch, paying 88 for the ones and $12 for the twos. The ones were shipped to the company's Panhandle rauch and the twos to Arkansas City. E. D. Farmer has purchased of F. Dunlap of this county seventy-five head of steer cattle, paying two cents per pound for them.

Jackson & Aldwell recently bought 700 head of stock cattle, with about 250 calves thrown in, from J. S. Glenn of McCullough county at $7 per head. They were delivered last week at their ranch on Howard.

The Denver Field and Farm says the beef round-ups are working in most parts of that state and very soon the beeves will all be ready for shipment, but from present information it is judged that there can be no rush to market. The idea quite generally prevails that prices for fat cattle will be better later on, and the better prices are what the boys want.

TERRELL, Tex., Sept. 1 .- Considerable excitement was created this morning by the arrival of a squad of men from the Chisholm neighborhood, about seven miles north of the city, in search for a party whom they stated had fired a pistol at Col. Col. Chisholm was badly out by a man several months ago and considerable conjecture is made in regard to the shooting.

At the request of friends the coffin was opened, and the body was found to be in a very advanced stage of decomposition, for one who had been embalmed. If the body had been embalmed it was very imperfectly done. The citizens here feel very indignant at the way Mr. Witcher was treated by the undertaker at Gaines ville, in holding the body of his son, and for the exorbitant charges he made for his services. The body had not been dressed, but was covered by a sheet.
